Father Hansen's message . . . I write from the library at Longlea Conference Center outside Boston, VA. The sun is lighting up the Blue Ridge Mountains in the distance. I've been considering what I should write about for this week's bulletin article. One thought was on the Guardian Angels, as if this were not a Sunday it would be the Memorial of the Angels. Another thought was to write about the Saint whose relic is in the back of the Cathedral – as on this day in 1928, he (St. Josemaria Escriva) founded Opus Dei that has in many ways impacted the family we call the Catholic Church. But I decided to share with you a quote from one of the meditations on the parable of the Pharisee and Tax Collector (Luke 18:9-14). The quote from St. Josemaria used in the meditation we could say is a good point to pray over to help fight pride. I'll be praying over part this point one day each week until my next silent retreat. It's point 263 in a posthumously published book called The Furrow. Here it goes:

“Allow me to remind you that among other evident signs of a lack of humility are:

- Thinking that what you do or say is better than what others do or say;
- Always wanting to get your own way;
- Arguing when you are not right or — when you are — insisting stubbornly or with bad manners;
- Giving your opinion without being asked for it, when charity does not demand you to do so;
- Despising the point of view of others;
- Not being aware that all the gifts and qualities you have are on loan;
- Not acknowledging that you are unworthy of all honour or esteem, even the ground you are treading on or the things you own;
- Mentioning yourself as an example in conversation;
- Speaking badly about yourself, so that they may form a good opinion of you, or contradict you;
- Making excuses when rebuked;
- Hiding some humiliating faults from your director, so that he may not lose the good opinion he has of you;
- Hearing praise with satisfaction, or being glad that others have spoken well of you;
- Being hurt that others are held in greater esteem than you;
- Refusing to carry out menial tasks;
- Seeking or wanting to be singled out;
- Letting drop words of self-praise in conversation, or words that might show your honesty, your wit or skill, your professional prestige...”
- Being ashamed of not having certain possessions...”
